RECTOR'S REPORT

The Rector indicated that he had no report for the Committee.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Hemphill provided an update on the following:

R1 Research Classification As already mentioned by the Rector, achieving R1 research classification from the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education is a significant achievement for the institution. One of 137 institutions or just 5% in the nation. It is a testament to the work researchers, faculty and staff have been engaged in for a number of years. Both Vice President Morris Foster and Provost Austin Agho should be commended for their leadership in this area. He asked Vice President Foster to provide a summary of what this designation means for the University and what it will take to maintain it.

Vice President Morris enumerated the many transformational advantages of being an R1 institution, including attracting better faculty candidates and more graduate students, benefits for undergraduate students, new peer group of R1 institutions, joining UVA, Va. Tech, VCU and EMU as the fifth Virginia R1 institution, and raising the standards on which we are being compared. He shared the criteria on which the R1 Carnegie classification is based, which are research expenditures, number of research doctorate grants issued, and the number of faculty Ph.D. researchers, and the continuing efforts to increase investments in each of those areas. In response to a question from the Rector, he noted that there are ten different variables that fall within those three categories. There are no reputational categories and no absolute thresholds as it involves comparisons with other institutions. Whenever institutions have fallen back to R2 after having R1 status, it is usually due to the research doctorate category.

Vice President for University Communications & Chief Marketing Officer President Hemphill provided an update on the national search for the University's inaugural Vice President for University Communications & Chief Marketing Office one of the recommendations of the Branding, Marketing & Communication Task Force. The search committee has been formed and held its first meeting earlier this month. The search firm Greenwood Asher is assisting with the search and has started its recruitment efforts. Following the recruitment phase, the first round of initial interviews are anticipated for mid-March, campus visits by finalists in mid-April, and the new vice president on board by July. A small work group from the broader Task Force has been formed to review some of the its

Board. All those who agree that only lawfully exempted matters and specifically only the business matter stated in the motion convening the closed session were discussed in closed session say "aye." All those who disagree say "nay." The certification was approved by roll call vote (Ayes: Allmond, Bradley, Corn, Dabney, Dickeski, Jones; Nays: None)
